I-200 Basic Incident Command System

Course Description: This course introduces students to the principles of the Incident Command System (ICS) associated with incident-related performance. Topics include: leadership and management, delegation of authority and management by objectives, functional areas and positions, briefings, organizational flexibility, transitions and transfers.

This course was developed in conjunction with the US Fire Administration (Q-463) and the Emergency Management Institute (IS-200). These courses are built on the same lesson objectives and content as the NWCG I-200 course and are interchangeable; they are all National Incident Management System (NIMS) compliant.

Objectives: Describe an Incident Command System (ICS) organization appropriate to the complexity of an incident or event. Use the ICS to manage an incident or event.

Target Group: First line supervisors, single resource bosses, lead dispatchers, field supervisors, company officers, and entry level positions (trainees) on incident management teams.

I-400 Advanced Incident Command System

Course Description: This course directs the student towards an operational understanding of large single-agency and complex multi-agency/multi-jurisdictional incident responses. Presented in an intense, participative workshop environment, this course focuses on area command and staff issues, as well as, the planning, logistical and fiscal considerations associated with complex incident management and interagency coordination. This course comprises four of the 17 instructional modules making up the ICS curriculum.

These modules include:

- Command and General Staff (Module 12)
- Unified Command (Module 13)
- Major Incident Management (Module 14)
- Area Command (Module 15)

Objectives:

- Describe each command and general staff position.
- Describe how major incidents engender special management challenges.
- Describe the circumstances in which an area command is established.

Target Group: Senior personnel expected to perform in a management capacity in an area command/complex incident environment.

I-402 ICS for Executives

Course Description: This course is an Incident Command System orientation for executives, administrators, and policy makers not usually part of incident-related ICS operations, but who would benefit from a greater understanding of ICS-related management issues. As a classroom module, this course covers the fundamentals of ICS, unified and area command, multi-agency coordination, and information transfer and responsibilities between incident command and executive-level personnel. ICS for Executives is the last of the 17 instructional modules making up the ICS curriculum.

Objectives:

- Describe the basic organization of the ICS.
- Define terms used frequently within the ICS.
- Describe the three major responsibilities of an executive with respect to an incident.
- Describe distinctions between ICS organization, emergency operations center (EOCs), and multi-agency coordination system (MACS).
- Provide an introduction to the Agency Administrator's role and Delegations of Authority (not part of standard I-402).

Target Group: Agency executives, administrators, and policy makers charged with establishing or implementing policy, but who are usually not involved in incident-related ICS management.

M-480 Multi Agency Coordinating Group

Course Description: This course is designed to train and orient potential Multi-Agency Coordinating (MAC) Group members and MAC Group Coordinators. It will provide the students with a working knowledge of the Multi-Agency Coordination System and the organization that helps support MAC Group activities.

Objective: The student will be able to successfully participate as a MAC Group member or perform as a MAC Group Coordinator trainee. The student is expected to perform at the geographic area level or sub geographic area level where the instruction is given.

Target Group: This course is designed for individuals who have no previous training or experience with Multi-Agency Coordinating Group operations, and may be called upon to participate in this activity. This includes those who have a thorough knowledge of the Multi-Agency Coordination System and Multi-Agency Coordinating Groups, but have not performed as MAC Group Coordinators. It is important that individuals who may act as MAC Group Coordinators be those with a thorough understanding of fire management and the dispatch/coordination system.

IMT Leadership & Team Building

Course Description: This series is a custom created week to help bring together the local Incident Management Team Members as a team. The week will start with the L-280 Followership to Leadership Class. L-280 is a self-assessment opportunity for individuals preparing to step into a leadership role. The course combines one day of classroom instruction followed by a second day in the field with students working through a series of problem solving events in small teams (Field Leadership Assessment Course). Topics include: leadership values and principles, transition challenges for new leaders, situational leadership, team cohesion factors, and ethical decision-making.

The second part of the week will focus on Incident Management Team activities and refinement of skills. Participants will work throughout the week in functional groups utilizing ICS and the ICS Planning Cycle.

Objectives:

- Build team cohesion.
- Function as a team through the week.
- Prepare for the Table Top Exercise.

Target Group: Personnel planning on participating on the North Central Washington Incident Management Team.
